

The Ugly Duckling turns into a swan

The Ugly Duckling

by Hans Christian Andersen

In 1843, Denmark's best-loved and best-known writer Hans Christian Andersen (1805-1875) wrote the story of The Ugly Duckling. This poignant tale tells of the duckling who grew up by a duckpond and endured so much misery because it was different from the other ducklings. But it had other qualities and by the end of the story had turned into a beautiful swan – the best of all birds, the storyteller says.

»Looks shouldn't make a difference...«

The first Mini Crosser electric scooter came to the world in 1980, and was certainly no swan to look out. Its friends and relations could only shake their heads and sigh, »Whatever next?« But the ugly duckling proved to be strong, stable and safe – and laid the foundation for new and unimagined freedoms for the physically disabled.

»Hatching out by a duckpond doesn't m

1980

1984

1986

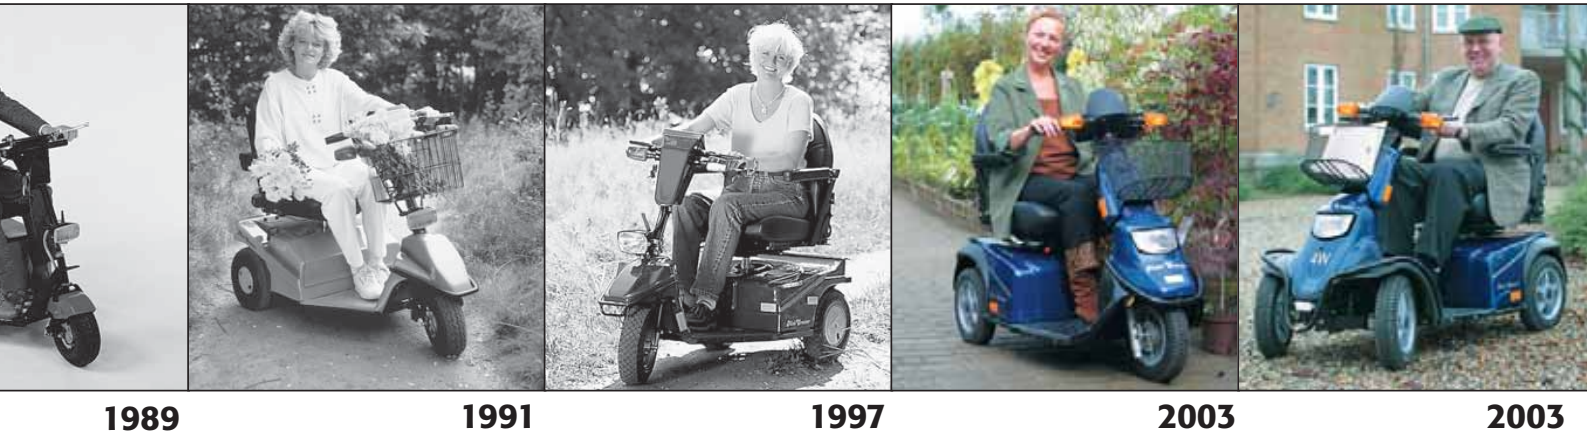

1987

Since 1980 Mini Crosser has been producing electric scooters and wheelchairs for the elderly and the disabled. Mini Crosser's vision is to offer solutions for the walking-impaired, enabling them to keep up an active, socially-grounded life, and as far as possible without the help of other people.

Mini Crosser is particularly noted for its smart designs, manoeuvrability and powerful motors. This last has made Mini Crosser extremely popular in countries with steep slopes and hills. Even ice and snow cannot stop these all-terrain vehicles – for of course, Mini Crosser is also available with studded tyres.

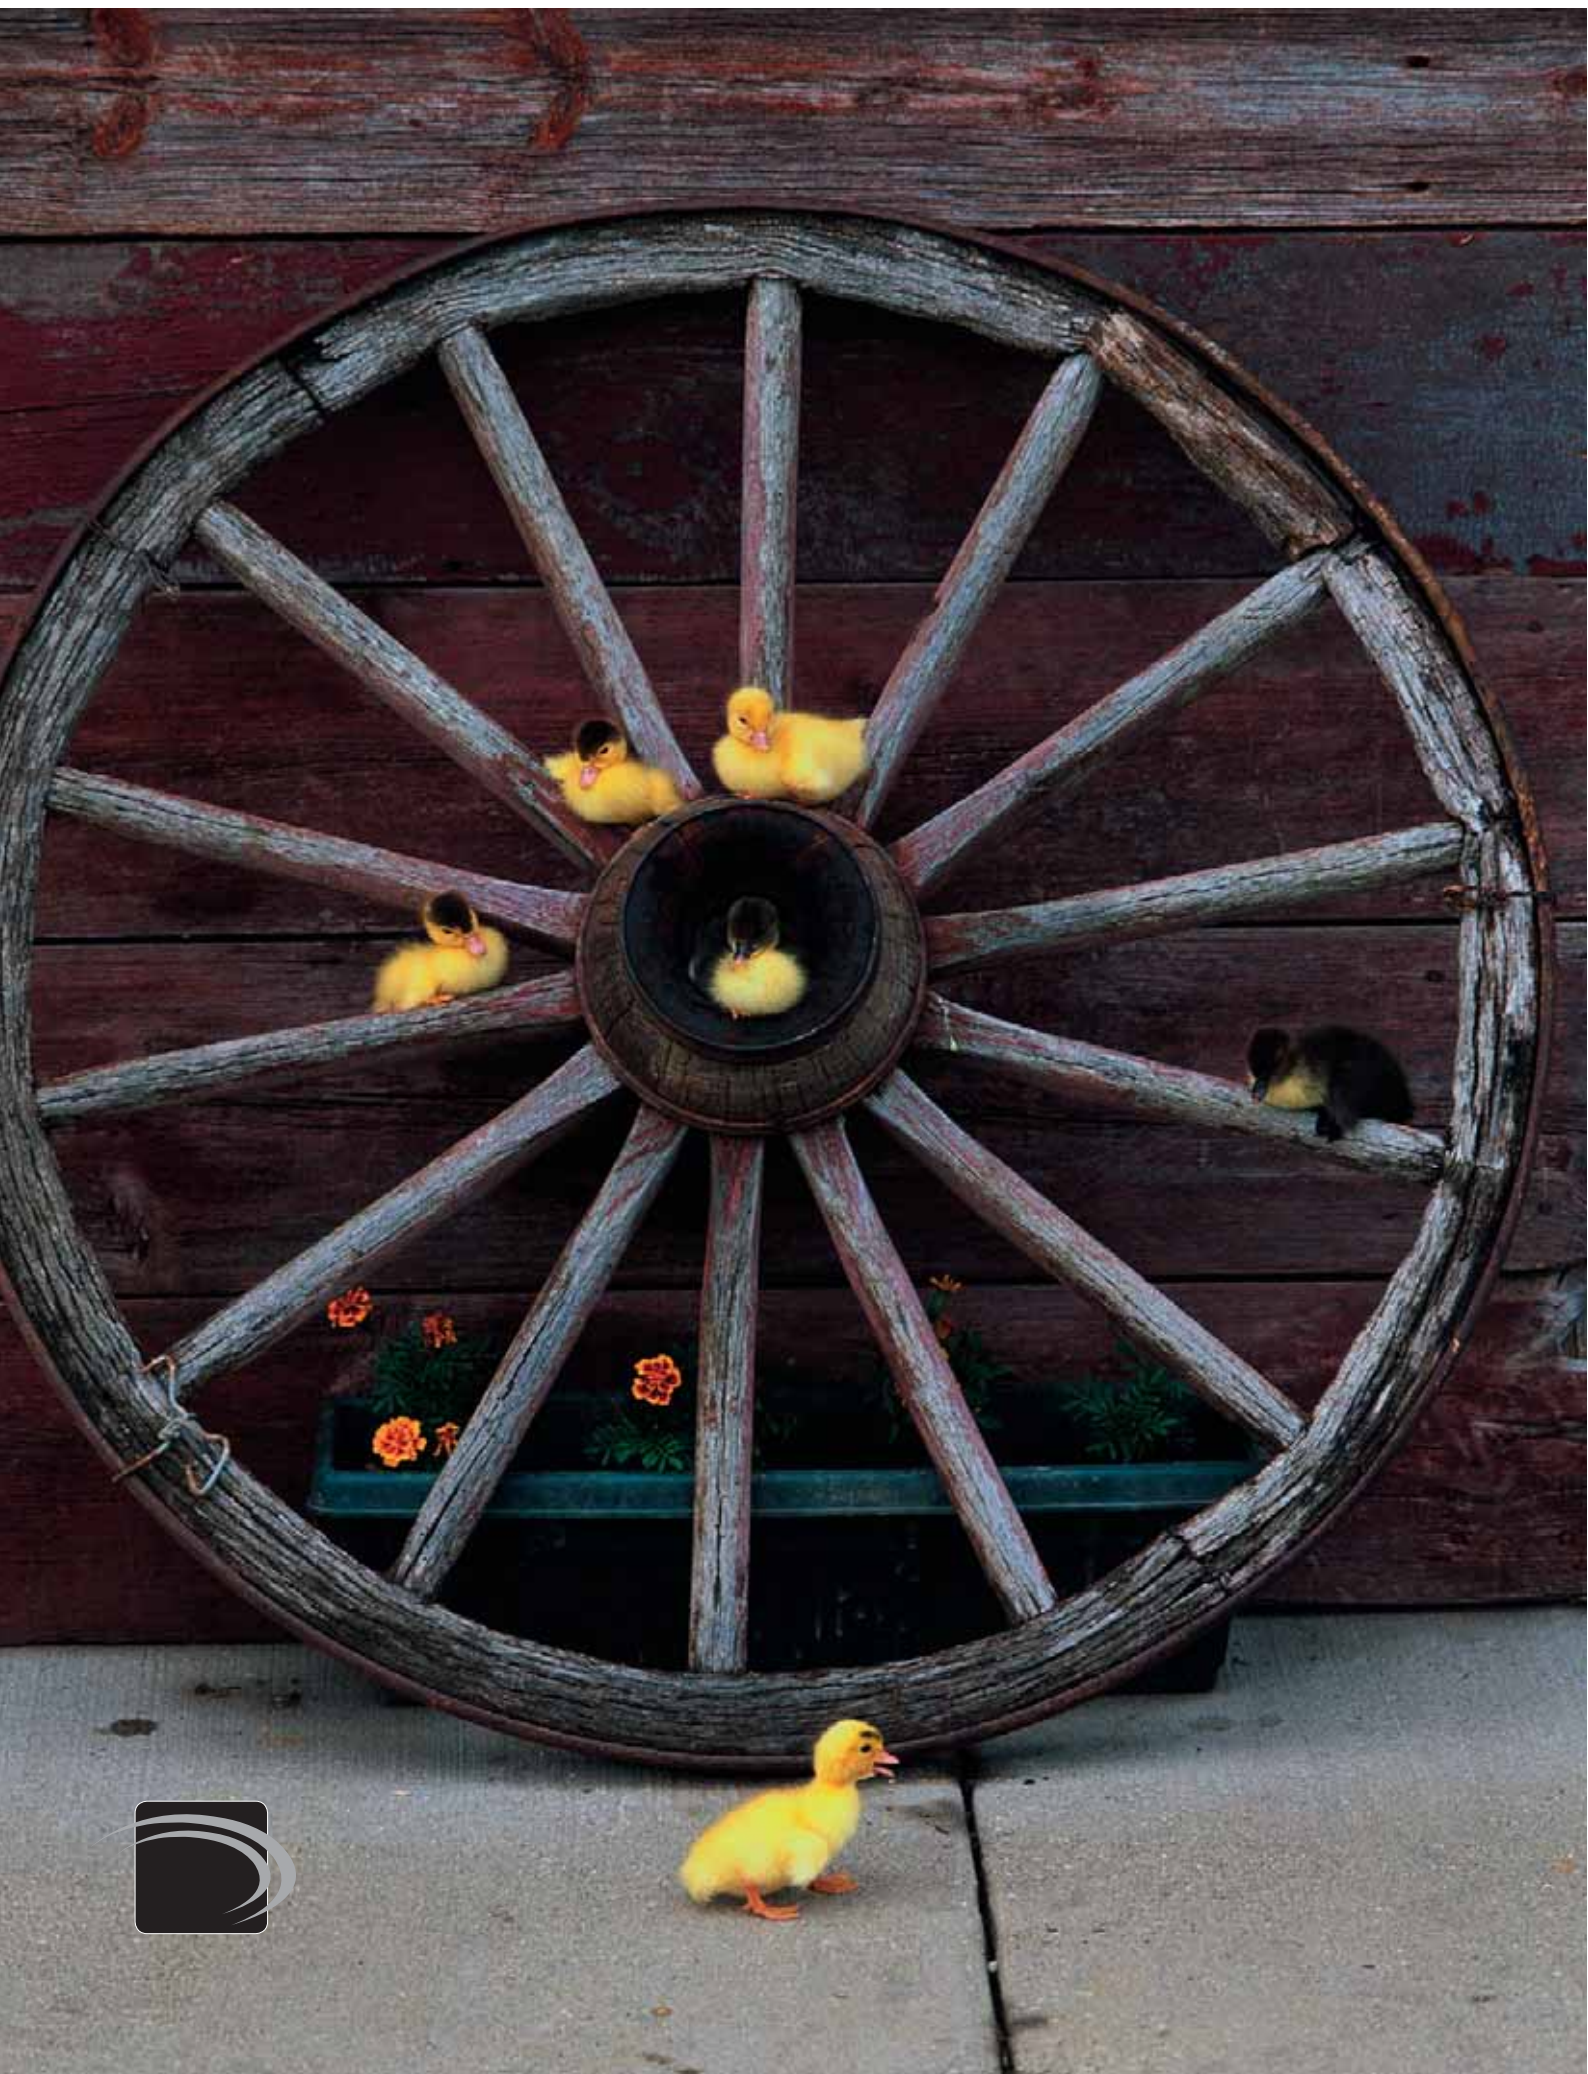

matter if you come from a swan's egg...«

Over the years Mini Crosser has acquired all the knowledge and expertise to secure users the maximum pleasure and benefit from their electric scooter or wheelchair. And when standard solutions – as supplemented by our wide range of accessories – are still not enough, a special adaptation can be developed in close consultation with technical aid centres, institutions and the disabled organisations.

The current Mini Crosser range includes some 20 models and a wide selection of accessories – including other life-enhancing disabled aids.

»How large the world is...« said the young duck

Based in Denmark Mini Crosser is today market leading in Scandinavia where we supply users and communities directly through our salesmen and technicians. We train and support the local dealers who represent us all over the world.

»The new one is the most beautiful of them all...«
And the old swans bowed their heads before him.

www.minicrosser.com